PAUL TRIBLE, (left) Republican candidate for the United States Senate, is shown with Ivy Holland, (right) when he visited Appomattox on Monday of this week. Trible, with six years experience in the United States Congress, had this to say," I have traveled from the shores of Chincoteague to the mountains of Wise County seeking the advice and counsel of men and women in all walks of life. Region by region across Virginia, we work in different ways . . . shipbuilders and watermen, farmers and teachers, coal miners, government workers and business people. Yet we all share a proud heritage and hold to a sound philosophy of government. It is Virginia's traditions that have guided my service in Congress and will always continue to guide me."

SCOTT INSURANCE

When trying to decide which insurance company to insure with, remember one thing: your Independent Insurance Agent doesn't work for any big corporation with the accompanying red tape - he works for you.

Therefore, since he's not bound by endless big corporation policies which often result in the insured being treated more like a computer read-out sheet than a person, your Independent Agent can design that package which will give you and your family peace of mind for a lifetime.

As an expert in all phases of insurance, including life, auto, boat, motorcycle, mobile home, disability income protection, fire and business, he can effectively handle your total insurance needs.

Your Independent Agent is SCOTT INSURANCE, located at 4 different locations, such as 2241 Langhorne Rd. in Lynchburg, phone 847-0111, other locations in Appomattox, phone 352-7443 - Ann Reynolds, Associate; Altavista, phone 369-4711 - Chester Brockwell, Associate; and Rustburg, phone 846-3125 - A.B. Woodson, Associate. When this respected agent stops out to your home or office to discuss protection, you'll be surprised at his low-key presentation - quite the contrary from many insurers.

To be independent of insurance worries, rely on your Independent Agent. Call SCOTT INSURANCE at one of their convenient locations and put insurance worries - and high pressure sales tactics - behind you.

Well, as anyone close to the real estate scene nationwide will quickly tell you, the professional brokers and realtors who represent STROUT REALTY can answer affirmatively to both of those questions.
